EDUCATION

Roger Williams University, 2011

Florida Coastal School of Law,
2015

Mark Kupcinkas Jr., originally from Massachusetts, embarked on his legal journey by earning a Bachelor's degree in International Relations and Legal Studies from Roger Williams University in 2011. Following his undergraduate studies, he relocated to Florida in 2012 to pursue his legal education at Florida Coastal School of Law. During his time in law school, Mr. Kupcinkas gained practical experience by working as a clerk for a reputable personal injury firm in Jacksonville.

After graduating from law school, Mr. Kupcinkas spent five years working for two of the largest auto insurance companies in the country. This experience provided him with valuable insights into the workings of insurance companies, which he now leverages to advocate for individuals and families who have suffered injuries due to the negligence of others. His transition to representing injured parties reflects his commitment to using his expertise to ensure fair compensation and justice for his clients.

Mr. Kupcinkas focuses his practice on personal injury claims, premises liability, slip and fall cases, and insurance claims. He is admitted to practice law in Florida and primarily operates out of Jacksonville, where he continues to serve his community by fighting for the rights of those harmed by negligence.
