Steven Nauman is an attorney in Morgan & Morgan's Orlando, Florida office, where he has been a member of the firm's Product Safety Group since August 2017. He represents individuals who have suffered severe injuries caused by defective products, litigating cases throughout Florida and in federal courts nationwide.

Before joining Morgan & Morgan, Mr. Nauman spent three years clerking for U.S. District Judge Paul G. Byron in Orlando, where he assisted the Court across a wide range of federal litigation — experience that gave him an early, in-depth understanding of federal practice and procedure from the bench.

A "Double Gator," Mr. Nauman earned his Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Anthropology from the University of Florida in 2008 and his Juris Doctor from the University of Florida Levin College of Law in 2013. While in law school, he served as a senior editor of the Florida Law Review, where he published an article examining the harms of mandatory minimum sentencing and proposing solutions to the incarceration crisis in America.

Mr. Nauman is married with two children, ages 8 and 5. In his spare time, he enjoys working out, running, and travelling with his wife and children.
