Barry University School of Law

Attorney Priscilla Sandoval-Gonzalez attended the University of Texas at San Antonio where she received a B.A. in Politics & Law with a minor in criminal justice. After graduation, she worked as a litigation paralegal for one of Texas' largest personal injury firms. After a year, she decided to attend law school and moved to Orlando to attend Barry University School of Law.

During law school, Mrs. Sandoval-Gonzalez was part of the law review, a student representative for the immigration clinic, and executive member of several student organizations. As part of the immigration clinic, she represented indigent clients before the Department of Justice's Immigration Court in Orlando and assisted them in obtaining Citizenship through the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services. At the same time, while in law school, she worked for a small personal injury law firm as a law clerk. In that firm, she assisted in representing clients who suffered injuries due to medical malpractice, automobiles, premises and in wrongful death cases.

In her last year of law school, Mrs. Sandoval-Gonzalez joined Morgan and Morgan to work as the law clerk for the medical malpractice, birth injury, and nursing home departments. Upon passing of the Florida Bar, she became a licensed attorney for the firm's medical malpractice department.

Mrs. Sandoval-Gonzalez now passionately represents clients who have been injured as a result of medical malpractice and birth injury incidents. She puts her passion for the law and her drive as a mother to help families who have become victims of medical malpractice. She is also proficient in both English and Spanish, enabling her to advocate effectively for a diverse clientele and ensuring language is never an obstacle to justice.

As of January 2025, Mrs. Sandoval-Gonzalez also passionately serves as an Adjunct Professor for Seminole State College of Florida's legal studies / paralegal certificate program. She is also a proud member of the Seminole County Florida Association for Women Lawyers.

When she is not advocating for her clients, she loves to garden, bake, go thrifting, and play with her 3 dogs, Peach, Daisy, and Snoopy. She is also married to her high school sweetheart, AJ, with whom she shares a beautiful little girl.
