EDUCATION

The Ohio State University

Emory University School of Law

Robert (Rob) Young practices primarily personal injury law at Morgan & Morgan's Marietta, Georgia office.

Originally from Toronto, Canada, Rob grew up in Columbus, Ohio. He earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science and International Studies with honors from The Ohio State University. Rob then attended Emory University School of Law, where he served as Executive Symposium Editor for the Emory International Law Review.

Rob began his legal career practicing employment law at some of the country's largest national defense firms. As an employment defense attorney, Rob represented employers in a wide variety of complex litigation matters and gained extensive experience litigating cases in both federal and state court. Rob joined Morgan & Morgan to use his litigation experience to advocate for individuals and ensure they receive the most compensation for their financial and physical injuries.
