EDUCATION

University of South Florida

University of Florida, Levin
College of Law

Elizabeth embarked on her academic journey at the University of South Florida, where she delved into the study of anthropology, graduating with distinction in 2013. This educational background laid a strong foundation for her, fostering skills in cultural analysis, critical thinking, and problem-solving that have proven invaluable in her legal career. She further pursued her passion for justice by earning her Juris Doctor from the prestigious University of Florida, Levin College of Law, in 2019, solidifying her commitment to the legal profession and enhancing her ability to serve her clients effectively.

Before joining the esteemed team at Morgan & Morgan, Elizabeth honed her legal skills primarily in criminal defense, where she developed a keen understanding of navigating complex legal landscapes and vigorously advocating for her clients' rights. Her transition to specializing in premises liability cases through the BOLT program reflects her versatility and dedication to expanding her legal expertise. This evolution not only underscores Elizabeth's commitment to professional growth but also highlights her unwavering dedication to providing exceptional representation to clients in Gainesville, FL, and beyond who are grappling with issues related to premises liability and slip-and-fall accidents. With her multifaceted background and strong commitment to justice, Elizabeth is a valuable asset to her clients and the legal community as a whole.
