University of Dayton School of Law

Gregory Vescovo became part of Morgan & Morgan in 2022, marking a significant step forward in his legal career. He graduated from the prestigious University of Dayton School of Law in May 2010, where he was acknowledged for his dedication to Pro Bono Commitment to the Community, highlighting his commitment not only to legal proficiency but also to serving the wider community. With licenses to practice law in Missouri and Kansas, Gregory brings extensive legal knowledge and a strong advocacy ethos to his role at Morgan & Morgan.

Being a lifelong resident of St. Louis, Gregory is deeply connected to his local community. His active involvement is evident through his ongoing service as a member of the Richmond Heights, Missouri City Council, currently serving a second four-year term. This position reflects Gregory's enthusiasm for civic duties and his aim to contribute positively to his hometown's growth and well-being.

Before joining Morgan & Morgan, Gregory refined his legal skills in insurance defense. However, fueled by his genuine passion for championing the rights of the injured, he redirected his practice to focus primarily on representing those who have suffered harm. Beyond his professional responsibilities, Gregory finds joy in family life, residing in Richmond Heights with his wife and four children. He actively engages in his children's sports activities, coaches their soccer and softball teams, and indulges in leisure activities like golfing and traveling with loved ones. This well-rounded approach underscores Gregory's dedication to balancing professional excellence with personal satisfaction and community involvement.
