EDUCATION

University of South Florida

Ave Maria School of Law

Kristen received her bachelor's degree from the University of South Florida and graduated with her Juris Doctorate from Ave Maria School of Law. Prior to entering law school, she worked as a legal assistant to an attorney practicing Social Security disability and knew that she would return to continue helping disabled people fight for the benefits they deserve. After many years of successfully representing clients through all stages of the Social Security disability claim process, she is excited to transition her focus on to personal injury law.

She enjoys cooking, traveling, and spending time with her two children.
