EDUCATION

College of Charleston (Classics A.B.)

University of Florida JD.

John helps South Carolinians injured in commercial truck crashes and other serious personal injury cases. A long-time Charlestonian, John loves helping his neighbors navigate the turbulent wake an injury leaves in their lives.

After graduating from College of Charleston, John went to the University of Florida for his law degree. While there, John joined the Trial Team and fell in love with fighting for others inside and outside of the court room. During law school, John was able to work with the local prosecutor and gain trial experience, trying two DUI cases and obtaining guilty verdicts for the people of Florida.

After law school, John returned to Charleston. After some time as a complex business litigation associate for a nationwide firm, John moved to a boutique Charleston trial firm handling high-stakes insurance defense cases. Now, John is proud to work for individuals, not insurance companies.

John enjoys fishing, hiking, reading, writing, and spending time with his family.
