Moses Ahn is an experienced personal injury attorney focusing on premises liability cases in the New York office. After receiving his Master of Divinity and serving as a pastor for 6 years, Mr. Ahn transitioned to law practice, leveraging his zeal for community advocacy and development to achieve optimal results for his clients. Mr. Ahn has extensive experience litigating complex cases ranging from construction accidents to civil-rights cases. After 5 years of working in the New York City Law Department's Tort Division – where he quickly rose to become an Assistant Unit Chief – he transitioned to representing injured plaintiffs throughout the City at premier personal injury and civil-rights law firms, obtaining millions of dollars in settlements and verdicts for his clients. Mr. Ahn is known for his aggressive and circumspect litigation style and will leverage his extensive experience and passion for advocacy to get the best results for your case.
