New England Law

Theresa Wall was born in Washington, DC and grew up in Simsbury, Connecticut. She completed her undergraduate studies at Boston College and has been living in Massachusetts ever since. After a few years of sales experience, she then earned her Law Degree at New England Law in Boston. Theresa's original area of practice was in real estate law. She spent over ten years representing clients and lenders in numerous real estate transactions. A lifelong enthusiasm for real estate as well as exceptional management skills enabled her to successfully "flip" several homes from Boston to the Cape. Theresa went on to work at a prominent boutique firm and gained experience in personal injury law. This area of practice is near and dear to her. She now represents clients bringing the same underlying passion that inspired the Morgan & Morgan firm mission as she knows too well having also stood in the client's shoes. After suffering the tragic and sudden death of her father at a young age a wrongful death action ensued. She learned firsthand the importance of needing the best of the best lawyers on your side. She brings this sense of empathy to clients and along with it, a relentless fight on their behalf. She is an important member of the team who contributes to the complete dedication and commitment of the entire firm in achieving justice for clients. Theresa is a resident of Beacon Hill in Boston and enjoys spending time on the coast in Duxbury and Chatham on the Cape. She is a mom of three and an avid hockey fan of the Boston Bruins.
