The George Washington
University Law School, 2010

Ryan Torrens ran his own law practice in his hometown of Tampa, Florida for over a decade, fighting for the rights of homeowners facing foreclosure. During this time, Mr. Torrens defeated many of our country's largest banks at trial and saved the homes of many Floridians.

During this time, Mr. Torrens also represented homeowners in appeals against big banks and won reversals of foreclosure judgments in appeals before the Second District Court of Appeal.

In 2023, Mr. Torrens and his wife decided to move to a smaller town with beautiful beaches, and they made Pensacola, Florida, their new home. After serving as a prosecutor in Pensacola and a public defender in Fort Walton Beach, Mr. Torrens now puts his extensive legal experience to work on behalf of his clients in personal injury and premises liability cases.

Mr. Torrens graduated from the University of Tampa with a B.A. in Government and World Affairs and obtained his law degree from The George Washington University Law School.

When he's not fighting for his clients, Mr. Torrens enjoys running, surfing, and spending time with his wife, Francesca, and their adventurous tuxedo cat, Cosmo.
