Reed Clark began his academic journey at Georgia Southern University, earning his Bachelor of Arts in 2020. His curiosity for the law and strong sense of leadership led him to continue his studies at Samford University's Cumberland School of Law. There, he earned his Juris Doctor in 2024 and was an active member of the Air and Space Law Society, exploring the intersection of innovation, regulation, and justice.

Alongside his academic pursuits, Reed has dedicated himself to service as an Infantry Officer in the Alabama Army National Guard. This experience instilled in him a deep commitment to discipline, integrity, and teamwork—values that now guide his work as an attorney. His background in leadership and his ability to remain calm under pressure have shaped his practical and strategic approach to the legal profession.

Today, Reed serves as a car accident attorney at Morgan and Morgan's Alpharetta office, where he advocates for individuals and families affected by negligence. He takes pride in helping his clients navigate difficult times with confidence, ensuring they receive the compensation and justice they deserve. IN THEIR WORDS

"I chose to become a lawyer for the same reason I joined the Army; to fight for people in need. Whether serving as an Infantry Officer or advocating for clients, my goal has always been to protect others and stand up for what's right. That commitment drives my approach to the law every day."
