EDUCATION

University of South Florida - Class of 2015

Northeastern University School of Law - Class of 2019

Meghan Thomas Parker was born and raised in Orlando, Florida, and began her academic journey at Bishop Moore High School, graduating in 2011. She went on to earn her undergraduate degree from the University of South Florida in 2015 before relocating to Boston in 2016 to pursue her legal education. Meghan received her Juris Doctor from Northeastern University School of Law in 2019 and was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar later that year. Since entering the legal profession, she has remained committed to using the law as a tool to support individuals facing difficult and often overwhelming circumstances.

After becoming an attorney, Meghan dedicated her career to helping people in need, including advocating for survivors of domestic violence in family law matters. That experience shaped her approach to legal representation and strengthened her skills in trauma-informed care and compassionate advocacy. Meghan now practices at Morgan and Morgan's Medford office, where she focuses on premises liability cases. She brings empathy, determination, and a client-centered mindset to every case, ensuring those she represents feel heard, supported, and confidently guided through the legal process.
