As a policyholder advocate at Morgan & Morgan, Joshua represents homeowners and businesses whose insurance companies have denied, delayed, or underpaid their claims. Early in his career, he defended insurance companies. After getting an inside look at how these corporations operate, he knew it didn't sit right with him, and it convinced him to spend the rest of his career on the side of the everyday person. Since then, Joshua has worked tirelessly to level the playing field between corporate giants and the public.

A Miami native, Joshua is a graduate of Belen Jesuit Preparatory School, Florida State University, and the University of Florida's Fredric G. Levin College of Law, where he earned a Certificate in Environmental, Land Use, and Real Estate Law and competed on the Environmental Moot Court team. During law school he externed with the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida and Children's Legal Services, and he studied abroad at the University of Oxford. He has carried that same commitment into his practice ever since, representing policyholders through every stage of litigation and appellate advocacy to hold insurers accountable for wrongful denials, underpayments, and bad faith practices. He has also helped grow firms' first-party practices nationwide, so policyholders across the country have access to someone in their corner to stand up for their rights.

Joshua brings the same careful preparation to every case, from denied roof or kitchen claim to a large commercial loss. His approach is straightforward: listen carefully, communicate honestly, and pursue the full recovery his clients are owed without losing sight of the real person behind every claim. Outside of work, he is an avid endurance runner and hiker, and he supports his local community through KidSide Miami, Inc., a non-profit that assists children and families in crisis due to high-conflict court cases.

If your insurance company has denied, delayed, or shortchanged your claim, Joshua and our team are ready to help, even if you just need a hand getting the claims process started.
