Duke Law School - 1999

Steven Tran graduated from Duke Law School in 1999. Since then, his legal practice has focused solely on civil litigation, practicing on both the defense and plaintiff sides of the bar. This extensive experience on both sides provides him with insight, experience and strategy to litigate effectively and creatively. His clients have ranged from individuals and small businesses to huge multi-national corporations. He understands that many of his clients are coming to him at a very difficult time in their lives looking for help and, at times, a life-line to get back up after tragedy has struck. He carries that responsibility with the weight that it deserves and represents his clients diligently and vigorously.
