EDUCATION

Wilkes University: 1996

Syracuse University College of Law: 1999

Ryan is a lifelong resident of Northeast Pennsylvania, and he is acutely aware of the issues facing our residents. That awareness comes from over 25 years' experience in representing individuals and corporations in all manner of litigation and transactions. For over 20 years, Ryan has advocated within the realm of workers' compensation, with many of those years spent representing employers and their insurance companies. Working on the defense side of claims offers a unique perspective as to what the insurance company will do next and why - valuable insight for a worker whose injury has turned their world upside down.

Ryan is also a certified Federal mediator, bringing parties together toward an agreement on the legal issues separating them. These experiences compel Ryan to explain to his clients in detail what they will face in their legal matter - because it is their matter, and Ryan is committed to helping them safely weather the storm. You've been wronged, let's make it right.
