Marcus A. Heath's dedication to advocating for the workforce is rooted in his upbringing in a rural, blue-collar town in Northeast Ohio. From a young age, he developed a firsthand understanding of the challenges facing hardworking individuals by taking on a variety of labor-intensive roles. Whether he was milking cows on a dairy farm, stocking shelves at a local grocery store, or working as a press operator at a plastics factory, these early experiences shaped a relentless work ethic. This background continues to serve as the driving force behind his commitment to fighting for everyday workers and their families.

Since the very beginning of his legal career, Marcus has focused his practice exclusively on representing injured workers. He has never represented an insurance company or big business, choosing instead to use his expertise to support those who need it most. Before stepping into his current role leading the Ohio workers' compensation team at Morgan & Morgan, he gained extensive experience at two respected injury firms in Southwest Ohio. In these positions, he handled every aspect of the claims process, representing clients in countless hearings before the Industrial Commission of Ohio and successfully litigating a wide range of complex legal issues.

An accomplished trial lawyer, Marcus has won multiple jury trials across several Ohio counties and has successfully argued cases before various appellate courts throughout the state. He is particularly well known for his ability to secure maximum compensation for his clients, having recovered millions of dollars in benefits and negotiated significant settlements over the course of his career. Today, he remains steadfast in his mission to provide exceptional representation, ensuring that injured workers across Ohio receive the justice and support they truly deserve.
