Originally from Portland, Oregon, Chris Lee comes from humble beginnings as a first-generation Korean-American. His journey is marked by a significant family milestone, as he was one of the first in his entire family to graduate from college. He attended the University of Oregon, where he focused his studies on Crime, Law, and Society, a foundation that sparked his passion for the legal system. To further his ambitions, Chris moved to Southern California to attend Chapman University's Fowler School of Law, where he refined the skills necessary to navigate complex legal disputes.

After earning his Juris Doctor, Chris entered the legal field with a versatile perspective, gaining experience in personal injury law on both the defense and plaintiff sides. This dual background allowed him to understand the internal strategies used by all parties in a case, making him a more effective and well-rounded advocate. Today, he is a dedicated member of the Morgan & Morgan office in Irvine, focusing exclusively on personal injury matters. He is known for an approach that is both aggressive and professional, a combination that has consistently led to favorable results and justice for his clients.

When he is not in the courtroom, Chris stays active through a variety of personal interests that reflect his disciplined and energetic nature. He is an avid golfer and a dedicated practitioner of both Muay Thai and Ju-Jitsu. Additionally, he expresses his creativity by making music, finding a unique balance between the rigors of his legal practice and his artistic and athletic pursuits.
