EDUCATION

Albany Law School (2009)

Brandeis University (2005)

Over the course of his distinguished career, James developed elite courtroom expertise as a dedicated medical malpractice trial attorney. He built an impressive track record by taking over fifty cases to verdict in various jurisdictions across the country. Through his extensive litigation experience, James earned admission to practice law in the state courts of New York, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and North Carolina. His longstanding focus on medical accountability sharpened his strategic analytical skills and enabled him to champion the critical cause of improving patient safety through vigorous, effective courtroom advocacy.

Today, James brings his wealth of trial experience and passion for helping victims of medical negligence to North Carolina and Massachusetts. He focuses his practice on medical malpractice cases, fighting tirelessly for individuals and families who have been harmed by medical negligence. Known for his approachable and friendly demeanor, James provides his clients with a supportive environment while aggressively navigating the complexities of their claims. His deep familiarity with high-stakes litigation ensures that the people of Charlotte, Boston, and across the country, have a highly skilled, compassionate, and prepared advocate in their corner.
