EDUCATION

University of Cincinnati, B.S. in Criminal Justice, 1997

Capital University Law School, J.D., 2000

Kory Veletean is a trial lawyer who has devoted more than twenty years representing individuals and families harmed by negligence and corporate misconduct, taking on large corporations and insurance companies that refuse to accept responsibility.

After a catastrophic injury or the loss of a loved one, people are often left searching for answers, stability, and someone they can trust. Kory helps guide them through that uncertainty while holding those responsible accountable. Kory grew up in northern Ohio and moved to Cincinnati in 1994 to attend the University of Cincinnati, where he earned a B.S. in Criminal Justice in 1997. He then moved to Columbus to attend Capital University Law School, where he earned his J.D. in 2000.

After graduation from law school, Kory began his law career practicing general civil litigation at a firm in Boca Raton, Florida. In 2007, he returned to Cincinnati and began working for an established law firm, shifting his practice exclusively to personal injury. Kory joined Morgan & Morgan in 2026.

Kory utilizes his experience and knowledge on issues of premises liability to secure the best outcomes for his clients. He has been recognized by his peers as a Super Lawyer in personal injury law.

Kory is admitted to practice law in Ohio and Florida.
