EDUCATION

Fordham University - 2009

Elisabeth Haub School of Law at Pace University - 2012

Victor Aqeel brings a broad litigation background spanning workers' compensation, personal injury defense, general litigation, municipal law, and disability retirement matters. He has represented thousands of clients before the New York State Workers' Compensation Board, handling matters from inception through trial, as well as appeals before the New York State Appellate Division, Third Department.

Victor has also represented correction officers and police officers throughout New York State in workers' compensation and disability retirement matters. His experience includes handling all aspects of litigation related to New York State retirement disability claims, including the preparation and filing of Article 78 petitions, as well as appeals before the New York State Appellate Division, Third Department, and the New York State Court of Appeals.

With experience across both defense litigation and public-sector legal matters, Victor offers a well-rounded perspective to each case he handles. His practice is grounded in careful case preparation, responsive client service, and the effective resolution of disputes through negotiation, motion practice, and litigation.

Victor's background in workers' compensation, personal injury defense, and disability retirement litigation provides him with valuable insight into the medical, factual, and legal issues that often drive claims. He is known for approaching matters with professionalism, discipline, and a focused commitment to achieving favorable outcomes for his clients.
