Driven by a deep commitment to advocacy, he went on to pursue his legal education at the City University of New York, where he mastered civil litigation and courtroom strategy before graduating with his Juris Doctor in 1989. For over thirty years since entering the legal field, Pete has built an elite reputation as a premier legal strategist, dedicating his career to fighting for the complete and maximum compensation that injured individuals and their loved ones deserve.

Throughout his three decades of practice, Pete has developed monumental expertise in complex and high-stakes personal injury, wrongful death, and catastrophic accident cases. He is also highly sought after for his experience handling devastating trucking accidents and cases involving the negligent operation, maintenance, and supervision of construction sites and gas or electric facilities. Whether successfully utilizing mediation and arbitration to secure favorable settlements outside of court or constructing thoughtful, evidence-driven presentations to deeply connect with judges and jurors at trial, Pete ensures that his clients are fully and justly compensated for a lifetime of economic losses, physical pain, and mental anguish.

Pete brings this incredible wealth of trial wisdom, investigative skill, and litigation strategy to the Morgan and Morgan office in Jersey City. Known for being approachable and deeply empathetic, he takes the time to truly understand the practical and emotional realities his clients face during difficult times. By combining a highly supportive and personalized client experience with an uncompromising courtroom presence, Pete handles every complex investigation and executes strategy with the focus necessary to consistently achieve the best possible results for families throughout New Jersey.
