EDUCATION

Penn State University - 2010

Thomas M. Cooley Law School -
2013

Anthony Giletto began his academic journey at Penn State University, where he completed his undergraduate studies and graduated in 2010. Driven by a passion for advocacy, he went on to attend the Thomas M. Cooley Law School, earning his Juris Doctor in 2013. Upon entering the legal profession, Anthony dedicated the next decade of his career to practicing Pennsylvania workers' compensation law on the defense side. This extensive experience representing employers and insurance carriers provided him with a highly sophisticated, inside understanding of how the opposition evaluates workplace injury claims and approaches litigation.

Today, Anthony has proudly brought this monumental wealth of insider knowledge and legal strategy to the Morgan and Morgan team in the Philadelphia office. By switching sides, he is able to use his ten years of defense insights to level the playing field for injured workers, easily anticipating the insurance companies' moves to secure the best possible outcomes. Known for his warm demeanor and highly determined approach, Anthony is fully committed to guiding families through the complexities of the system to ensure they receive the medical care, financial support, and justice they deserve.
