EDUCATION

Columbia University, B.A.
magna cum laude, 2020

Georgetown University, J.D.,
2023

Born and raised in Central Florida, Noah Widmann was raised by his single mother after she became disabled when he was four years old. His upbringing instilled in him an early appreciation for perseverance, hard work, and the importance of advocating for others.

Noah went on to attend Columbia University, graduating magna cum laude with a Bachelor of Arts in 2020. He then earned his Juris Doctor from Georgetown University Law Center in 2023, where he developed a particular interest in litigation, public policy, and advocacy and gained experience working on legislative and policy matters.

Following law school, Noah began his legal career in private practice, gaining experience handling sophisticated legal matters and representing clients in complex disputes. He now serves as an associate attorney in Morgan & Morgan's Washington, D.C. office, where he represents individuals who have been injured as a result of the negligence of others.

Noah brings to his practice both rigorous legal training and a personal understanding of the challenges that families can face when circumstances suddenly change. He is committed to being a strong advocate for his clients, guiding them through the legal process and working to secure the full compensation and justice they deserve.
