Josh LoAlbo believes effective legal representation starts with a simple principle: clients deserve an attorney who is accessible, straightforward, and invested in their case.

As a personal injury attorney in Morgan & Morgan's Pittsburgh office, Josh represents people injured in motor vehicle accidents, helping them navigate the legal process and pursue the compensation they deserve. He understands that an unexpected injury can disrupt every aspect of life, and approaches each case with determination, attention to detail, and personal accountability.

Before practicing law, Josh spent 15 years in hospitality, learning to connect with people from all walks of life. That experience shaped his approach: listen carefully, communicate honestly, and earn people's trust. Whether addressing concerns, explaining next steps, or advocating on a client's behalf, Josh believes people deserve straight answers and an attorney who follows through.

Born and raised in Pittsburgh, Josh earned his Bachelor of Science in Geology and Juris Doctor from the University of Pittsburgh. During law school, he interned at Westinghouse Electric Company's headquarters in Cranberry Township and joined Morgan & Morgan as a summer associate. He later earned his attorney position through the Morgan Associate Program and is admitted to practice in Pennsylvania.

For Josh, personal injury law is about more than resolving claims. It's about standing up for people in difficult circumstances, holding responsible parties accountable, and making sure clients know someone is firmly in their corner.

Josh takes pride in representing the community he has always called home. Outside the office, he enjoys golf, the outdoors, and Pittsburgh sports. His loyalty to the black and gold has never been in question.
