Mary "Masha" Polupan is a Ukrainian-American attorney with a passion #forthepeople. She grew up in Chicagoland, where her experiences as a first-generation American informed her enthusiasm for the law. She went on to graduate from Loyola University Chicago, where she found her home in the courtroom as a part of the mock trial team.

After completing her degree in political science, she attended the University of Illinois College of Law and graduated magna cum laude as a part of the Order of the Coif. She built trial skills at the Anderson Center for Advocacy and Professionalism Trial Team, which recognized her effort and ability with the Paul M. Lisnek Award for Excellence & Ethics in Trial Advocacy. Alongside her academic and trial advocacy experiences, she worked for her local government trying cases in City Court and helping City Attorneys protect the rule of law.

Mary knew she wanted to practice personal injury law and represent injured clients after seeing the way jury verdicts helped hold people accountable while bringing plaintiffs' truth to light. She believes that the civil litigation process and juries are a cornerstone of our democracy and that each client deserves high-caliber legal representation and support when dealing with life-altering situations like car, truck, and motorcycle collisions.

Outside of the office or the courtroom, Mary is most likely to be found enjoying the outdoors with family and friends, tinkering with her PC gaming setup, or diving into the latest bestseller. She also volunteers with the Ukrainian Society of Indiana and loves to help law students and pre-law candidates develop their careers.
